When it comes to holistic cancer care, these pharmacies provide more than prescriptions. See whether your local drugstore offers similar help!

- CVS Health committed $10 million to the American Cancer Society for research, patient services such as free transportation and lodging near hospitals, and tobacco-free initiatives.
- Rite Aid partnered with the Skin Cancer Foundation to give clients free full-body skin cancer screenings—out of a roving RV traveling across country.
- Walgreens launched its Feel More Like You program to offer consultations with beauty specialists who know how to counter the physical changes that accompany cancer treatment. After all, looking good is part of feeling better.
