Recommendations from The National Foundation for Cancer Research

June 14, 2021 By Bob Barnett

The National Foundation for Cancer Research, established in 1973 to support cancer research and public education, recently updated its app recommendations. These top picks are free.

Belong.Life (belong.life). Find a support group, get access to leading researchers, discover clinical trials and store medical records.

Cancer.Net Mobile (cancer.net/navigating-cancer-care/managing-your-care/cancernet mobile). The American Society of Clinical Oncology's app helps you track symptoms, appointments, medications and providers while providing updated information on over 120 types of cancer.

CareZone (carezone.com). Track appointments, treatments, care plans and drug protocols; keep a journal; and track essential stats, such as sleep and weight.

Caring Bridge (caringbridge.org/how-it-works). Got a scan result and want to share it easily without texting or emailing everyone? This popular site makes it easy to set up a free website to keep family and friends up to date and offers an app.
