

Researching Prostate Cancer

Check out this blunt, even controversial, look at how patients research their diseases and treatments.

January 17, 2025 By Dan Zeller

I've used the prostate cancer forums on the website HealthUnlocked to help gain other patient experiences as I move deeper into the world of advanced prostate cancer.

Recently, one of the forum moderators posted a link to this article:

The danger of doing your own research (or using AI)

It's a rather blunt—perhaps even controversial—look at how patients research their diseases and treatments, but it does make you think about your own approach to becoming an educated patient and perhaps some of the pitfalls in doing so.

You may find it interesting. Or not.

This post originally appeared January 6, 2024, on Dan's Journey Through Prostate Cancer. It is republished with permission.
