Wow! 200,000

I am both humbled and amazed by how many people have read this blog about my journey with prostate cancer.

May 6, 2021 By Dan Zeller

Anyone who has ever spent more than three seconds reading this blog knows that I'm a numbers guy, so needless to say I'm both amazed and humbled that this little ol' blog surpassed 200,000 views today.

When I started this blog ten and a half years ago to keep my family and friends informed of my status in those early days, I had no idea I would be keeping it going this long, or that more than 32,000 visitors would have checked it out.

So to everyone who's followed along, shared their own stories, hopefully learned a little along the way, and have become virtual friends, a heartfelt and massive Thank You!

Stay well.

This post originally appeared on Dan's Journey through Prostate Cancer on April 1, 2021. It is republished with permission.

© 2026 Smart + Strong All Rights Reserved.